To extend to Ireland the provisions of an Act of the Fifty-second Year of his late Majesty King George the Third, for providing a summary Remedy in cases of Abuses of Trusts created for Charitable Purposes.

- WH E R E F O R E an Act was passed in the fifty-second year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, intituled, "An Act to provide a summary Remedy in cases of Abuses of Trusts created for Charitable Purposes," whereby (after reciting that it was expedient to provide a more summary remedy in cases of breaches of trusts created for charitable purposes, as well as for the just and upright administration of the same) it was enacted, That in every case of a breach of trust or supposed breach of any trust created for a charitable purpose, or wherever the direction or order of a court of Equity should be deemed necessary for the administration of any trust for a charitable purpose, it should be lawful for any two or more persons to present a petition to the Lord Chancellor, Lord Keeper or Lords Commissioners for the custody of the Great Seal, or Master of the Rolls for the time being, or to the Court of Exchequer, stating such complaint, and praying such relief as the nature of the case might require, and that it should be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, Lord Keeper, and Commissioners for the custody of the Great Seal, and for the Master of the Rolls and the Court of Exchequer, and they were thereby required, to hear such petition in a summary way, and upon affidavits or such other evidence as should be produced upon such hearing, to determine the same, and make such order therein, and with respect to the costs of such application, as to him or them should seem just; and that such order should be final and conclusive, unless the party or parties who should think himself or themselves aggrieved thereby thereby should, within two years from the time when such order should have been passed and entered by the proper officer, have preferred an appeal from such decision to the House of Lords, to whom it was thereby enacted and declared that an appeal should lie from such order :

 And whereas it was further thereby provided and enacted, That every petition so to be preferred as aforesaid, should be signed, by the persons preferring the same, in the presence of, and should be attested by the solicitor or attorney concerned for such petitioners ; and every such petition should be submitted to and allowed by His Majesty's Attorney or Solicitor General, and that such allowance should be certified by him, before any such petition should be presented : And whereas it was further thereby enacted, That neither the petition, nor any proceedings upon the same or relative thereto, nor the copies of any such petition or proceedings, should be subject or liable to the payment of any stamp duty whatever :

And whereas Doubts have existed, whether the said Act extends to Ireland, and it is proper to remove such Doubts, and to declare that the said Act extends to Ireland as well as to England and Wales, and that the said Act and all and every of the enactments and provisions thereof shall extend and be construed to extend to Ireland, as if Ireland had been expressly mentioned therein ; BE it therefore Enacted and Declared, by The KING's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the Authority of the same, THAT the said several Enactments and Provisions in the said Act contained, do and shall extend and be applied to Ireland as well as England and Wales, and shall be observed, executed and put in force in Ireland as well as in England and Wales, by the Lord High Chancellor, the Lord Keeper and the Commissioners for the custody of the Great Seal in Ireland, and by the Master of the Rolls and the Court of Exchequer, and His Majesty's Attorney and Solicitor General in Ireland respectively, in such and the like manner to all intents and purposes as if the said recited Act had been originally expressly extended to Ireland ; any thing in the said Act or any other Act whatsoever to the contrary thereof in anywise notwithstanding.
